Confirmation Page Best Practices SOP

Presented By Jeremy Haynes

Made For:

Personal Brands, High Ticket Product or Service Businesses, Digital Marketers, Entrepreneurs, and Anyone looking to scale their business using call funnels, webinars, low ticket to high ticket ascension strategies, and challenge funnels.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1. Introduction & Why Confirmation Pages Matter

2. Modern Due Diligence & Controlling the Narrative
3. The Main Confirmation Video
4. Breakout Videos: The Digestible Q&A Modules
5. Testimonials & Trust Assets: Leveraging Real Transparency
6. Ongoing Optimization & Data Feedback
7. Synergizing Follow-Up (Emails, Texts, and "Hammer Them" Content)
8. Accelerating Your Sales Cycle & Final Action Steps
9. Examples

---

1. INTRODUCTION & WHY CONFIRMATION PAGES MATTER

When you push people through any funnel—be it a call funnel, webinar registration, or challenge funnel—the confirmation page is the first place they land after taking action. This page can dramatically influence your show rate, frame prospects in the right mindset, and shorten your sales cycle.

Key Reasons It Matters

- Acknowledge the Action: Confirm they successfully booked or opted in.
- Address Immediate Objections: Eliminate real reasons for them to bail.
- Accelerate Due Diligence: People are going to research you anyway—best to guide them.

Modern Best Practice: Skip the useless “Thanks, see you soon” approach. Instead, equip them with what they need to feel confident in showing up. This is the gateway to a well-framed sales conversation.

---

2. MODERN DUE DILIGENCE & CONTROLLING THE NARRATIVE

Your prospect has just taken the leap of scheduling a call or opting into your funnel—but don’t let the celebration be short-lived. In the minutes, hours, or days between that action and your actual conversation, they’re going to do their homework on you. It’s called modern due diligence. And if you don’t guide it, they’ll find (or invent) answers on their own.

2.1 What People Specifically Look For

1. Legitimacy & Credibility
    - “Are these people even real?”
    - “Have they scammed anyone?”
    - “Is their address, contact info, or company presence legit?”
    - “Who else has trusted them?”
2. Price & Cost Objections
    - “Why is this so expensive?”
    - “Can I get it cheaper elsewhere?”
    - “Is it worth the money?”
    - “Will I go into debt or is there a financing option?”
3. Risk & Worst-Case Scenarios
    - “What if this fails?”

- “What if they disappear or file bankruptcy?”
- “Do they offer a refund or guarantee—and is it real or just marketing fluff?”
- “Am I stuck paying if I don’t see results?”

4. Timeline & Logistics
    - “How long does it take to see results?”
    - “What’s required of me?”
    - “Will this conflict with my schedule?”
    - “Is this a one-time session or an ongoing program?”
5. Success & Expectations
    - “Are these testimonials cherry-picked?”
    - “What’s the average or realistic outcome?”
    - “Can I see someone who tried and didn’t do well—what happened then?”
    - “How many people achieve big wins?”
6. Social Proof & Outside Perspectives
    - “What do Reddit users say about them?”
    - “Are their Trustpilot reviews genuine or fake?”
    - “Has anyone posted a rant about them on social media?”
    - “Do people keep talking about the same issues?”

2.2 Why You Must Steer the Conversation

- Prospects Crave Transparency: If you leave major questions unanswered, they’ll assume the worst. They’ve heard horror stories, so it’s your job to show them you’re different.

- Unaddressed Skepticism Becomes No-Shows: The second a prospect finds a “scam” thread or even a tiny red flag—without seeing your explanation—they lose trust and might vanish before the call.

- You’re Their Guide: People want to be led. If you confidently guide them to the answers (and yes, even the “bad” or “less-than-ideal” scenarios), they’ll respect you for it.

2.3 Common Platforms & Search Behaviors

1. Reddit

    - The #1 place for unfiltered opinions. If a negative (or positive) post about you exists, they’ll find it.

    - People believe Reddit more than many “official” review sites, so address it head-on in your confirmation content.

2. Google

    - Searching “[Your Name] + Scam,” “[Your Company] + Complaints,” or “[Offer Name] + Reviews” is standard.

    - If a high-ranking negative page exists, assume your prospect will see it. Proactively mention and reframe it.

3. YouTube & Social Media

    - They may hunt for in-depth video reviews, rants, or exposés. Show them you’re aware of any chatter—and that you’re not avoiding it.

2.4 Best Practices for Controlling the Narrative

1. Acknowledge the Downside

    - If you have a 10% fail rate or a certain segment of people who don’t succeed, be transparent. “We see about 9 out of 10 people thrive, while 1 out of 10 doesn’t due to [reasons]. Here's what we do in those cases…"

- This honesty disarms skepticism faster than anything else.

2. Show Them Where to Look

   - Encourage them to check your Reddit threads or real reviews. Tag on a mini-video: "Here's how to interpret what you'll see if you search us on Google or Reddit."

   - Position yourself as a partner in their research, not a salesperson who wants to keep them in the dark.

3. Highlight Third-Party Verification

   - If you've got strong Trustpilot or BBB reviews, show them. If you have a known brand or influencer endorsing you, say it. If your dispute rate is low in Stripe or PayPal, literally show the screenshot.

4. Contextualize Guarantees

   - Don't just say "we have a money-back guarantee." Explain how and why it works, and what you do if someone's unhappy. Address the real fear: "What if they offer a guarantee but go bankrupt?"

5. Use Breakout Videos & Testimonials

   - This entire SOP is about how you piece these assets together. The more organized your answers are, the more they feel you truly understand their concerns.

2.5 The Outcome of Guiding Their Research

- Higher Show Rates: When all the "Is this legit?" jitters are calmed, they're more likely to keep that appointment.

- Shorter Sales Cycles: Less time spent on the phone telling them how real you are—they already know.

- Better Deal Flow: By the time they talk to you or your closer, they're 80% convinced. You just finish the final 20%.

In Summary

Modern due diligence is a fact of life. When you openly acknowledge the types of questions they're asking, guide them to where they'll find answers, and preempt the negative chatter they might see, you become the trusted source. That's how you keep them engaged, confident, and ready to hear your offer on the call.

---

3. THE MAIN CONFIRMATION VIDEO

At the very top of your confirmation page, include a short, primary video that does four things:

1. Welcomes & Thanks them (briefly).
2. Explains you'll help them do due diligence and guide their research.
3. Addresses major risks or objections, not shying away from worst-case scenarios.
4. Redirects them to further info on the page: breakout videos, testimonials, etc.

> Pro Tip: State plainly, "I'm here to help you do your research so that by the time we speak, you know exactly whether this is for you."

Tone & Style

- Be transparent: People can smell hype and fluff from a mile away.
- Own any negative or doubtful points: If something's out there that spooks prospects, say so and frame it properly.

---

4. BREAKOUT VIDEOS: THE DIGESTIBLE Q&A MODULES

Immediately below your main confirmation video, embed short breakout videos (1–5 minutes) that tackle the key questions your future buyers have. Label each video by its specific topic, so they can jump to the sections that matter most.

4.1 Why Breakout Videos?

1. Digestible & On-Demand
    - Instead of one long video, you create smaller clips addressing each concern ("How do I verify your reviews?" "Why does this cost $X?" etc.).
2. Stronger Pre-Call Framing
    - You eliminate repetitive Q&A that normally chews up half the sales call, so they show up warmer and better prepared.
3. Boost Trust & Decrease Skepticism
    - Prospects assume companies hide the worst parts. When you proactively talk about them, they trust you more.

4.2 How to Select Breakout Topics

- Sales Calls & Applications: Talk to your closers; ask what objections eat up time or kill deals.
- Address Downside & Skepticism: "What if it's not right for me? What if the results aren't as promised?" Don't avoid these; embrace them.
- Leverage Public Reviews & 'Scam' Threads: If you find comments criticizing your price or approach, record a mini-video clarifying that exact point.

4.3 Crafting Each Mini-Video

1. Title Clearly

    - “What If It Doesn’t Work?” “Why It Costs $XXXX,” “Our Real Success Rate,” etc.

2. Open with the Question
    - “A lot of people ask how safe this is…” Be direct.
3. Answer with Evidence
    - Show your dispute rate, a screenshot of your refund policy, or a quick story about how you handled a worst-case scenario.
4. Invite Further Review
    - Encourage them to watch more breakouts or bring it up on the call if they need deeper clarity.
5. Keep It Short (Under 5 Minutes)
    - Micro-attention spans are real. Don’t ramble.

4.4 Placement on the Page

- Cluster Them right under the main video in a grid or bullet list: “Common Questions” or “Important Topics Before Our Call.”
- Order by Priority: If cost is the #1 query, make that breakout the first or most prominent.
- Mention in Main Video: Remind them below your intro video that these Q&As exist.

---

5. TESTIMONIALS & TRUST ASSETS: LEVERAGING REAL TRANSPARENCY

Modern prospects don’t just want “highlight-reel” testimonials. They want the full picture:

1. Home-Run Success Stories

    - Show the big wins—everyone loves a wow factor.

2. Average or Mid-Level Wins

    - Far more realistic for many buyers, which increases perceived honesty.

3. Worst-Case or "Less Than Ideal"

    - If you have an example of someone who barely broke even or didn't see insane gains but still found value, sharing it builds immense trust.

5.1 Third-Party Platforms

- Reddit: Encourage real customers to post about their experience. Reddit is where many prospects go for an unfiltered view.

- Video Interviews: Post quick, genuine conversations with customers who walk through their journey.

5.2 Quoting Real Data

- Dispute/Refund Rates: If yours is low, call it out. "0.7% dispute rate after 5,000 transactions." That's tangible social proof.

---

6. ONGOING OPTIMIZATION & DATA FEEDBACK

6.1 Listen to Your Closers

- They'll be the first to know if a new objection is popping up. Make a new breakout video for it.

- If leads mention negative threads on social media, proactively address it on your confirmation page.

6.2 Track Show Rate & Drop-Off

- Application > Call: If half the people who book never show, you might need more trust assets or better clarity on cost.

- If you drop under a ~70% show rate, revisit your confirmation content and breakout videos.

6.3 Refresh Quarterly

- Markets evolve, new rumors arise. Don't set and forget. Keep your page updated with relevant content and newly filmed segments.

---

7. SYNERGIZING FOLLOW-UP (EMAILS, TEXTS, AND "HAMMER THEM" CONTENT)

7.1 Value-Dense Emails

- Go beyond "Don't forget your call."

- Link back to breakout videos or highlight key trust assets (case studies, average results, big wins, or partial wins).

7.2 Short-Form & Long-Form Retargeting

- Use platforms like Facebook, Instagram, YouTube to show them deeper content that reiterates your main confirmation-page points.

- If the call is 2–3 days out, they should see multiple short pieces from you explaining your offer, addressing objections, etc.

7.3 Text & Call Reminders

- Standard best practice: 24-hour reminder, 2-hour reminder, and 10-minute reminder. Possibly even a “final check” call or text.

- Point back to the confirmation page if they claim they “haven’t seen it.” Don’t let them remain unprepared.

---

8. ACCELERATING YOUR SALES CYCLE & FINAL ACTION STEPS

8.1 Show Rate Improvement

- Using a transparent confirmation page + short breakout videos + retargeting and email sequences = show rates climbing from 50–60% to 80%+.

8.2 Stronger One-Call Closes

- When people know your price, your average/worst-case scenarios, and your guarantees, they arrive with fewer unanswered questions.

- Expect more “paid in full” commitments.

8.3 Continual Updates

- Watch for new public misconceptions or threads. If anything pops up, add a video or text snippet to your confirmation page.

- Consumer skepticism evolves, so your readiness must evolve too.

WRAP-UP & NEXT STEPS

Modern due diligence is non-negotiable—it's happening no matter what. When you guide it effectively:

- You weed out no-shows and unqualified leads.
- You welcome legitimate, financially capable, and well-informed prospects who already trust you by the time they get on a call.

Immediate Action Items

1. Upgrade Your Confirmation Page
    - Add updated trust assets, breakout videos, and "real talk" about both success and failure scenarios.
2. Sync Your Follow-Up
    - Ensure your reminder emails/texts direct people back to the page or relevant videos they might have missed.
3. Monitor Show Rate & Feedback
    - If you see a repeated objection in calls, patch it into your breakout videos ASAP. Make that page a living asset.

That's it. When you handle your confirmation page like this, you'll see a profound difference in show rates, the energy on your calls, and how quickly you can convert. No more half-baked "thanks for scheduling" pages. You're operating at a higher caliber—one that respects modern consumer skepticism and leverages it to build trust and authority.

—Jeremy Haynes

9. Examples

- https://masterinternetmarketing.com/mim-call-confirmed
- https://podcastguest.io/precallfaq (improved show rate 30%)
- https://www.housingalchemist.com/confirmation-p
- https://www.team-pow.com/pow-plan-thank-you
- https://ecombossmentoring.com.au/confirmed-call

- https://www.callfunnelpreview.com/confirmed