BATTLE PLAN BLUEPRINT

1

Strategize

As each phase of these real-time changes are made, everything is documented to calibrate and optimize future campaigns for the highest probability of success. This means all of the failures and successes achieved will be recorded for future usage when building out the next advertising and marketing system.

2

Design

We envision and then create a dynamic advertising and follow-up sales model into motion for you within 72 business hours of you becoming a client with Megalodon. We ensure all of our strategies, ideas and execution plans align with your company's internal goals.

3

Optimize

Everything that we design and conceptualize is going to be optimized for your success based on historically successful advertising campaigns and marketing funnels from competitors and similar industry tactics. We will then take this data and use it for optimizing the campaigns and ideas brought forth to a refined point before the coming phase of action.

4

Develop

The creation period. We're going to be executing on the strategy development and idea sessions that are now coming to life in this period. As a client, you're going to be getting visual and verbal updates throughout this process as a variety of creation milestones are achieved. This development phase is also known as the approval phase to ensure our creative aligns with your objectives and brand positioning desired. After everything is tested for lead flow optimization, it's time to launch the assets created into the marketplace.

5

Deploy

We've loaded the canons and now it's time to fire! We take the everything that we've created in the days before, and launch the advertising model(s) into the market. We ensure that the budget is calibrated appropriately for the maximum amount of qualified results.

6

Analyze

During the advertising and marketing period, there is a heavy focal point on the analytics being generated every day. We graph the data collected to pinpoint 'bottle-necks' in the customer flow, to then make real-time changes to all assets including the ads, the landing pages, sales pages, up-sell pages, email follow-up and dynamic ad retargeting models. Every lead has the highest probability for conversion when advertising and marketing with Megalodon Marketing.
