Hiring & Team Onboarding - Standard Operating Procedure

Presented By Jeremy Haynes

Department: Hiring Manager

Estimated Time: Dependant on training system

Goal/Intention: We want to create a system where we can successfully generate applicants, interview them, and onboard them into our marketing agency with efficiency and effectiveness.

Tools Needed:

- Culture index personality survey software
- Can use training library like kajabi or teachable or clickfunnels or even just a youtube playlist
- Docusign

Process:

1. There's multiple ways to generate qualified applicants into your business.
    a. We like to start with what we call 'in network'
        i. In network applicants will come from Facebook groups where other people we may know, know this person applying with us so they can qualify them and so there's more accountability to the applicant performing to a high standard
        ii. This can also come from referrals from others who source talent or train people
            1. As an example, I always get great closer referrals from Dan Lok or Desmond (Dans right hand man)
    b. We like generating applicants from making a Facebook post, and then running an engagement campaign on that Facebook post targeted towards the ideal people we want to apply

Who wants to learn sales from me directly in person for 6 months and have me PAY YOU to do it?

If you can get on a plane (or are here already) to Beverly Hills in the next 7 days, I want to talk with you.

You will help our business for 6 months. Your accommodation will be covered by you, however we will cover your basic living expenses and activities while at the office working with us. We will take care of you - we are not cheap but no person we hire is going to get big bucks from our wallet until it's earned.

You will receive a cut of the money your sales make.

You will work beside me daily as I help duplicate my skills and my expert staffs skills into you to help our business.

This is an opportunity of a lifetime and a skill that will feed you for the rest of your life. It won't be easy, you have to be crazy. I will be ruthless. I need to see more samples of your skill. If you applied before, apply again.

If you can't cover your own flight out here or drive over to the office, don't bother messaging me. I will mold you into a rockstar and after 6 months you can go do what you like but for 6 months, you are MINE.

Do not apply if you are addicted to anything.
Do not apply if you are stupid.
Do not apply if you just want a free vacation.
Do not apply if you are broke.
Do not apply if you are too afraid to sit down and take ACTION a LOT.

Do apply if want to master a skill that can make you a fortune and be part of something extremely exciting that is about to blow up.

Apply if you are a good person with good ethics, who has social awareness.

        ii. We'll tell the people who apply to send us a 60 second video of them and to send over there resume
    c. We also use ziprecruiter.com because it posts on all job boards
    d. In some instances if we want someone REALLY qualified and we are willing to pay very well for the payroll position, we will go through a recruiter agency like Robert Half which scouts talent from other businesses or 'head hunts' them
    e. Final action we'll take if we really want a specific person for the position, is we'll offer them the 'silicon valley' package
        i. This entails us giving the person a sign on bonus and good benefits, or a great lifestyle along with the position they are being brought in for
        ii. We'll only do this if we are head hunting and can't get any other top talent in the door through other mediums that give us more leverage in the hiring process
2. Once we get some applicants in the door, we are going to do two different interview rounds with them.
    a. In the first interview round, we find most people are relatively uncomfortable, willing to say anything to get hired, and brown nosing.
        i. Here, we'll ask typical questions about the persons background, how long they've had certain skills we're hiring for, vet them for being focus on results, ensure they understand NDA and non competes we'll have them sign if we do hire them, and overall just vet the person out for characteristics that align with our culture.
    b. The second interview is typically where we'll test them a bit on critical thinking
        i. We'll ask questions that challenge them to give us a perspective on how they'd handle a challenging situation or problem scenario in the position they would work in, and how'd they'd handle it.
        ii. We ask questions that reveal if they are political or not by saying things like "what if your manager isn't allowing you to do something, would you come to us instead and go around your manager?"
            1. Generally 3-4 questions along these lines
        iii. "Would you eat someone else's lunch out of the fridge?"
        iv. "What time do you typically show up for a zoom call that's scheduled at 2 pm est?"
    c. What we're trying to find in the second interview, is who is good at thinking - since it's easy train skills, and hard to train how to think properly
3. Once we go through the 2 interviews, those who we want to bring on, we will send a culture index survey to first so we can gauge their personality, motivational needs and communication preferences so we can ensure it's a good fit for all parties and so we properly manage the person when they come on.

Traits Summary

This person is not interested in risk-related work and may wait on others to make decisions in such situations.

This is a pleasant person whose communication revolves around persuasion and general concepts, although they are capable of using specifics if necessary.

This person likes variation in their work, but is capable of focusing on redundant tasks for short periods of time without losing interest.

This person may seem compliant in most situations but is capable of exhibiting more expeditious behavior when implied from the work assigned.

Prefers to delegate the completion of tasks to others, but is capable of limited attention to detail.

Potentially stubborn, this person focuses on personal interests and may resist things that get in the way of their agenda. Prefers a loosely formed environment over structure.

An above average amount of behavioral flexibility, this person is highly capable of stretching themselves out of character for long periods of time via behavior modification and be very comfortable. They can also work comfortably in environments where multiple stressors are prevalent and not tire or become mentally run down.

This person is affected by their own emotions as well as the reactions of those around them. Consequentially, their actions, which are based on emotions, may not reflect anything close to their beliefs or objective reality. They may seek ways to bolster themselves by itemizing their efforts or by criticizing others' efforts.

Capable of employing imaginative thought to situations, this person is open to new concepts and processes. They should be encouraged in this ability as they may otherwise rely on clichéd or habitual responses. Ingenuity is enhanced by experience and education.

d. We encourage taking their consulting lessons on how to properly interpret the software results for best results in your agency

4. Once the persons culture index aligns with our values and what we're looking for in somebody, we will onboard them by starting out with a 90 day probationary period of time with reduced pay from what they'd otherwise receive a. This acts as a testing period for both parties and allows us to ensure we want to keep them on boarded after the probationary period ends.
   b. We have them sign an NDA (non disclosure agreement) and a non compete, along with filling out a 1099 contractor form, and we wrap it up with having them sign a contractor agreement that puts our 90 day deal and expectations for their role into writing.

c. We send all of this to them to sign via docusign
    i. If they refuse to sign, we refuse to hire them

5. Once the paperwork is signed, that's when we move onto the initial assignments we'll have them do and the training
    a. We typically start with the lowest hanging revenue driven repetitive tasks that they can knock out so they are consistently working while getting trained.
6. We will also have them a company email created, and ensure they get logins to everything they'll need to be working out of including project management systems, and any tools they need relative to their job.
7. We'll also add them into team communication channels such as slack or telegram
8. We host all of our onboarding training videos in Kajabi and have the person go through it there, because we can track and measure their progress.
    a. We have video lessons about the specific skill and their role, along with assignments we have them take action on to send to us so we know they did it outside of the tracking capabilities of kajabi.
    b. We also have an every other day 1 hour training with the person to get them adapted and familiarized with everything else about their role we want them trained on and schooled on.
9. We also like to send this person over SOPs for their role so they have clarity on exactly what to do for everything we have assigned to them
10. In our team, we have a once a week meeting where we train everyone on life and mindset skills, so everyone is advancing as a unit.
11. We also make sure they understand that questions do not make them look dumb or looked down upon when needing help
    a. give them calendar scheduler to schedule calls with you should they have questions on anything project related (best if remote)
    b. make sure they know they can come to you anytime to ask questions, that way you can create SOPs for anything they need on the fly, and ensure you set the expectation they will not be looked down upon for asking questions trying to figure things out
12. We want a culture that asks when needed, and is open with one another without harsh criticism or attacks related to intelligence.
13. From here, we make sure we track the person by statistics, we want them held accountable to a set of revenue driven statistics or something that can be measured so we can ensure the productivity of the job.
    a. measure they're work against revenue driven to justify payroll
14. End of the 90 probationary period, renegotiate or just roll the existing pay structure into 1 year or 6 month contractor agreement based on the value they brought to the organization
